

THE OHIO DEMOCRAT.

BRENN & WHITE, - - - Proprietors
A. H. Wilson, - - - Editor.

SATURDAY, NOV. 6 - 1886.

WARD township gave McBride 144 majority.

OUTRIVATE's majority in this district is 2559.

The men who triumphantly say, "I told you so," have been around numerous for the last few days.

INDIANA elects a Democratic Legislature. This will give us a Democratic U. S. Senator, in place of Ben Harrison, Republican.

The latest information that we can get about the election is that the next House of Representatives will be Democratic by a small majority.

The non-election of Small in South Carolina, and O'Hara in North Carolina will make the fifth Congress the first purely white Congress since the war.

SINCE the Democratic Administration enforced the tariff laws in compelling importers of wool to pay the legal duty according to the grade and quality of the wool, and prohibited them from entering good wool as shoddy, to avoid the tariff, the price of American wool has advanced.

In conversation Wednesday about the New York election, Mr. Conkling expressed the opinion that it indicated the downfall of the Republican party under unwise management. He mentioned no names, but when a gentleman present referred to Blain, Conkling smiled significantly.

The Republican leaders concentrated all their forces with unlimited corrupt use of money, to defeat Hurd, Morrison and Carlisle the active advocates of Tariff Reform, in order, if they succeeded in their purpose, to make it appear that Tariff Reform is odious to the people. It was the sly and judicious use of a "still hunt" campaign, aided by the thought in the minds of so many Democrats that the majority was abundantly large enough to let them safely stay at home, defeated Hurd and Morrison, and almost defeated Carlisle. "Eternal vigilance" is the price of success in politics as well as elsewhere, and it is time that Democrats should begin to make a practical application of the maxim, and not stay at home on election day.

Just After the Battle.

The contest of ballots, on Tuesday last, presents some peculiarities not often met with in an election in this county, and the result is correspondingly anomalous.

For the first time in the history of the State the general election came on a month later, and no doubt some of the voters failed to remember the event, and thus contributed to reduce the aggregate vote.

For the first time in a series of years three full tickets were presented for the various county offices, and the eyes of the Democratic hosts were distracted from their best and surest interests. The campaign was an unusually quiet one, but three speeches being made in the county by Democratic speakers, while both the Republican and Prohibition parties hurled their forces against the Democratic column.

Notwithstanding this the old party of Jefferson and Jackson has again been victorious, electing every candidate on the ticket.

The reduced majorities can be reasonably accounted for by the fact that not less than four hundred Democrats failed to vote, while not a few were led into forsaking the ideas for which they have fought for the last quarter of a century by the great Ignis Fatuus of the hour, Prohibition, and lifted up their voice and cast their vote against the principles of civil liberty and in favor of a dogma and a myth. The pluralities for the several candidates are as follows:

Sec'y. of State, John McBride, plurality—572.
Supreme Judge—M. D. Follett, " 463.
Congress—J. H. Outwater, " 252.
Circuit Judge—W. H. Safford, " 470.
Common Pleas—R. H. Wright, " 438.
Auditor—W. M. Bowen, " 330.
Treasurer—John Notestine, (no Republican opponent) majority—1592.
Commissioner—H. Trimmer, " 190.
Recorder—D. M. O'Hare (no Republican opponent) majority—170.
Infirmity Director—P. Hensel, " 427.

The vote for the Prohibition can didates ranges from 300 to 364, John Hann, for Congress, receiving the lowest and Steph Rizer, for Infirmity director, the highest.

The other candidates received an average vote of about 315.

The Greenback vote amounts to 16 in the county.

The Democrats may learn some important lessons for the future, among which are, that no reliance can be placed on apparent Republican apathy, for when they are quiet est they are doing their most effective work. Again, that Democrats wherever in the majority, should push forward an aggressive war and put no trust in "still" work. We will give tabulated abstract of vote in the county on our next outside.

The Meaning and the Warning.

The heavy vote for the Labor candidate is something more than a personal tribute to and triumph for Henry George. It testifies to the existence of a deeply rooted discontent among the working classes. It signifies in an unmistakable manner that the correctable abuses the remediable wrongs and the movable inequalities that press men down in this land of liberty must be attended to. Government has too long been careless and society indifferent to those matters. The deep voiced protest conveyed in the 67,000 votes for Henry George against the combined power of both political parties, of Wall street and the business interests, and of the public press should prove a warning to the community to heed the demands of La-sar for as they are just and reasonable—and that is further than the majority of citizens have thus far been willing to admit. The persistence of the agitation and its culmination in this significant vote ought to demonstrate to open-minded people that there is some reason for the discontent—that the demands have an element of justice in them.

It is true that the money power has encroached on public rights, not content with enjoying their wealth, the modern plutocrats are using their money to control politics, to buy legislators, to bribe officials. Monopolies built up by combinations of capitalists are protected by their subsidized agents, whose election is procured through enormous corruption funds. It is a fact that large numbers of people feel that there is no real equality between them and the millionaires sprouting up mushroom-like on every side. And when to political injury is added economic wrong it is strange that there should be discontent.

It is plutocracy that makes Socialism. To remove the effect, abate the cause.—N. Y. World.

Republican Partisanship.

The most "pernicious partisanship" shone in the campaign just closed was that of the Republican politicians in this city. Though knowing that they had no right to expect to elect a Mayor against so excellent a candidate of the united Democracy as was Mr. Hewitt, they nevertheless ignored all the facts and dangers involved in the canvass, went back on their past professions in favor of a business-like administration of the city government, and "whooped it up" for a youngster with all the old party cries and gong-beating. That they should have done this proves that the partisan spirit is still very strong in the Republican ranks. Those who think the party lines are breaking up will find nothing in the course of the Republicans to sustain their view. Neither will those who, like ourselves, have honestly striven to separate municipal government from partisan political and have promised to support the men of the best character and abilities, irrespective of parties be much encouraged by the determined attempt of the Republican managers to snatch a party advantage from a grave public danger. The incident ought to be a lesson to President Cleveland as well. He has carried on his policy thus far with the view of securing for himself, as a Democratic candidate, a large Republican vote. If these people cannot refrain from showing their partisanship in a municipal election, what rational hope of detaching them from their party in a national election, when the real partisan fight comes? "Ephraim is joined to his idols: let him alone."—N. Y. World.

Extract From a Washington Letter.

"There is something strange in the mysterious hold Secretary Lamar has on the hearts of the old soldiers in this city. They declare that—although an ex-confederate, and a prominent one at that—he has appointed more Union soldiers to office than any preceding head of the Interior department has in twelve years past, and a larger number than all the other Cabinet officers of the pending administration combined."

THANKSGIVING.

The President Issues His Proclamation for the Usual Annual Observance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The following is President Cleveland's proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 25th, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer:

A PROCLAMATION.

By the President of the U. S.:

It has long been the custom of the people of the United States, on a day in each year especially set apart by their Chief Executive, to acknowledge the goodness and mercy of God, and to invoke His continued care and protection.

In observance of such custom, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 25 day of November, instant, to be observed and kept as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

On that day let all our people forego their accustomed employments and assemble in their usual places of worship to give thanks to the Ruler of the Universe for our continued enjoyment of the blessings of a free government, for a renewal of business prosperity throughout the land, for the return which rewarded the labor of those who till the soil, and for our progress as a people in all that makes a nation great.

And while we contemplate the infinite power of God in flood, storm and earthquake, let the grateful hearts of those who have been shielded from harm through His mercy be turned in kindness toward those who have suffered through His visitations.

Let us also, in the midst of our thanksgiving remember the poor and needy with cheerful gifts and alms, so that our service may, by deeds of charity, be acceptable in the sight of the Lord.

In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this first day of November, A. D. 1886, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eleventh.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

By the President:
T. F. BAYARD, Sec'y of State.

A Good Actress.

Pretty Mattie Vickers sang, danced and acted the principal role in her new play, "Cherub," before two immense audiences yesterday. A cherub in her way is Mattie Vickers. The charming comedianne's rendition of the character was mirth-provoking and artistic. The play is from the pen of the well-known author, E. A. Locke. Mr. Locke has written a number of highly successful plays. Principal among them are "The Messenger from Jarvis Section," "Nobody's Claim," &c. The piece is located in the mountains of Pennsylvania, and opens with "Cherub" and "Grandy-Griff" away from their loved mountain, looking for the former's relatives, for "Cherub," when a child, had been left by a man at "Griff's" cabin on the mountain. Old "Griff" had thieving propensities, and, when he found "Cherub's" relatives, "Griff's" carpet-bag was filled with her uncle's possessions. Before this meeting "Cherub" had made the acquaintance of "Agnes Harper," the village school-teacher, to whom she had shown honest instincts. The stolen goods are discovered in "Griff's" carpet-bag by "Silas Harper," and, on demanding to know who and what they are, "Cherub" produces a letter given to her by a discharged servant of "Silas Harper."

The letter proves that "Cherub" is the daughter of "Silas Harper's" brother, who is supposed to have died in Australia. "Silas" refuses to shelter the girl, as she is a thief, but is finally persuaded by his daughter "Agnes." The wild young girl soon wins the affection of all in her new home. "Agnes Harper," "Cherub's" cousin, had secretly married a sailor, "Willis Warner." The news of the wreck of her husband's ship threw her into an illness from which she arose with sightless eyes. "Abel Warner," a twin brother of "Willis," hears from an old friend in San Francisco that his brother's wife has inherited a large fortune from John Harper in Australia, and taking advantage of her blindness passes himself off as "Willis," begs for money. "Cherub" is caught carrying money from "Agnes" to "Abel," and refuses to expose her cousin "Agnes" marriage. "Silas" accuses "Cherub" of stealing the money, and turns her out of the house. The return of "Willis" and "Cherub's" father from Australia ends the play in a manner which makes every body happy. The company supporting Miss Vickers is a strong one. Charles S. Rogers, as the "lightning-rod agent," brought down the house. His many clever imitations were well received.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Gov. Foraker has made another "bad break," in removing Major H. P. Lloyd, of Cincinnati, one of the Republican Trustees of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home, at Xenia, for not favoring the appointment of some of the Governor's pets, to places in that institution. Major Lloyd is a strong Republican and a wounded soldier, and in 1884, was the Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R. of Ohio. He has taken special interest in the institution, and was eminently qualified for the position. His successor is a Republican "bum" politician of Newark.

NOTICE TO Bridge Builders

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the Commissioners of Hocking County, Ohio, at the Auditor's office in Logan, O., up to 1 o'clock p. m. of Friday November 12th, 1886, for the superstructure of one iron bridge. Bridge to be one span, 110 feet extra length, with one roadway 12 feet in the clear, and with a capacity of 100 pounds to the square foot, rolling load; to be built over Rush Creek in Marion Township, at Little's (now Schell's) Mill. By order of the Commissioners of Hocking County, Ohio.

LOCAL, O., Oct. 15, 1886—4wks.

The latest Election news is much more favorable to the cause of the Democrats than at first believed. Six Democratic Congressmen from Ohio is not bad.
